

THE HARPER RECORD

Edited by Teresa Healy

CCPA
CANADIAN CENTRE
for POLICY ALTERNATIVES
CENTRE CANADIEN
de POLITIQUES ALTERNATIVES

www.policyalternatives.ca

About the Authors

The Ad-Hoc Coalition for Women's Equality and Human Rights represents more than 25 women's equality-seeking organizations. It was established in 2007 to oppose the action against women's rights taken by the Government of Canada.

Morna Ballantyne, Mother of two child care graduates, served as the volunteer coordinator for Code Blue for Child Care until September 2007, and is Managing Director of Union Development for the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Maude Barlow is the National Chairperson of the Council of Canadians and author of 16 bestselling books, including Blue Covenant: The Global Water Crisis and the Coming Battle for the Right to Water.

Ken Battle is President of the Caledon Institute of Social Policy and one of Canada's most influential thinkers on social policy reform.

Matthew Behrens is a Writer and Coordinator of the non-violent direct action network Homes not Bombs.

Barbara Cameron is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the School of Social Sciences at York University.

Bruce Campbell is the Executive Director of the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

Guy Caron is a Researcher with the Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union of Canada.

Eileen Corbet is a former Journalist, a diehard Socialist, and, above all, a hard-core Mother.

Corina Crawley is a National Research Representative with the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Erika Del Carmen Fuchs is a Member and Organizer with Justicia for Migrant Workers in Ontario and British Columbia.

Erin Donohue is a PhD candidate at the University of Ottawa.

John Hugh Edwards worked for 20 years in the Extension Department of St. Francis Xavier University and is currently a Staff Member in the Social and Economic Policy Department of the Canadian Labour Congress.

Evelyn Encalada is a Member and Organizer with Justicia for Migrant Workers in Ontario and British Columbia.

Karl Flecker is a Board Member of the Polaris Institute and National Director of the Anti-Racism and Human Rights Department of the Canadian Labour Congress.

Helen Forsey is a Writer and Activist based in Eastern Ontario.

John W. Foster is a Lecturer in globalization and human rights at the Department of Justice Studies at Carleton University, Ottawa. He is former Ariel F. Sallows Professor of International Human Rights at the College of Law at the University of Saskatchewan.

Caelie Frampton was part of a group of British Columbians brought together by the Council of Canadians to visit the tar sands in March 2008. The group included representatives from Check Your Head, the Institute for Citizen Journalism, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Greenpeace Canada, the Stop TILMA Working Group, and the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

Joel Davidson Harden is with the War Resisters Support Campaign.

Teresa Healy is a Senior Researcher in the Social and Economic Policy Department of the Canadian Labour Congress.

Trish Hennessy is the Director of the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives' Inequality Project.

Andrew Jackson is National Director of Social and Economic Policy for the Canadian Labour Congress.

Jessica Kalman is originally from Calgary, Alberta, and is currently the Tar Sands Watch Campaigner for the Polaris Institute, an Ottawa-based non-governmental organization working for democratic social change.

Meera Karunanathan is the National Water Campaigner at the Council of Canadians.

Sheila Katz is with the International Affairs Department of the Canadian Labour Congress.

Hugh Mackenzie is an Economist and a Research Associate with the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

Michael McBane is Executive Director of the Canadian Health Coalition.

Marita Moll is a Researcher, free-lance Writer, and a CCPA Research Associate.

Pat Mooney is Executive Director of the ETC Group, which for the past 25 years has been an advocate on global issues such as the conservation of agricultural biodiversity and food security, and on the impact of new technologies on the rural poor.

Dawn Moore is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Law at Carleton University, Ottawa. She is currently researching Canadian drug treatment costs. Her book Criminal Artefacts: Governing Drugs and Users is available through UBC Press.

Steve Patten is an Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of Alberta.

Lana Payne works in research and communications for FFAW/CAW and is First Vice-President of the Newfoundland and Labrador Federation of Labour.

Adriana Paz is a member and organizer with Justicia for Migrant Workers in Ontario and British Columbia.

John Rae is a long-time human rights and disability rights advocate.

Blair Redlin was part of a group of British Columbians brought together by the Council of Canadians to visit the tar sands in March 2008. The group included representatives from Check Your Head, the Institute for Citizen Journalism, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Greenpeace Canada, the Stop TILMA Working Group, and the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

Leslie Regan Shade is an Associate Professor at Concordia University.

Toby Sanger is an Economist with the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

Graham Saul is the Executive Director of Climate Action Network Canada.

Gauri Sreenivasan is a Senior Policy Analyst at the Canadian Council for International Cooperation, where she heads the Global Economic Justice System.

Jim Stanford is an Economist with the Canadian Auto Workers and the author of Economics for Everyone: A Short Guide to the Economics of Capitalism.

Steven Staples is President of the Rideau Institute and a Research Associate of the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives.

John W. Warnock has retired from teaching political economy and sociology at the University of Regina. He is author of Creating a Failed State: The U.S. and Canada in Afghanistan, Fernwood Publishing, 2008, Halifax and Winnipeg.

Mel Watkins is Professor Emeritus of Economics and Political Science at the University of Toronto and is Visiting Professor of Canadian Studies at Simon Fraser University, Spring 2009.

Erin Weir is an Economist with the United Steelworkers.

Howie West is the Work Reorganization Officer for the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

Julie White is Director of Research for the Communications, Energy and Paperworkers Union of Canada.